

This is the family tree created by Kate Tucker (Smith after marriage) from old family records. The notes were handwritten by her. It passed onto her daughter Elizabeth, who annotated it further. It was placed inside the cover binder of a bible and sealed with wax.

Elizabeth and Tommy remained childless, but were good friends with several Mackey families, especially Seth's wife Mira. The bible was a gift to Mira when Esther was born, and Mira passed it on to Esther at the birth of her first child, Dot. Esther did not know the tree was inside the cover binder.

Elijah knew of it. As a boy he had felt it and melted the wax. Finding it interesting but not useful, he put it back and resealed the binder.

Calvin was Halford Tucker's father, but he knew only that his dad's name was Kelty. He was unaware of the family history.

Seamus Tucker married an English Catholic girl, who was appalled at the traditions of Indian Spring. They moved out of Tucker Wood shortly after Kate was born.

Cara went to school in Richmond and Kate was unable to trace what happened to her after that.

After marrying Peter Smith, Kate moved onto a small farm owned by his parents in what would later come to be known as the town of Coldspring.

After marrying Tommy Mackey, Elizabeth moved back into Indian Spring. She was good friends with Seth Mackey's wife Mira, and passed the bible on to her when Esther was born.
